I think it is impossible to not get attached to these characters. A man interrupts them rudely, the nurse hands him a plastic cup as well and he empties it into his hand. It's been a while since I first read this but I read it on a trip to visit my mother. Meredith and Mallory Brynn learn on the night they turn thirteen that their psychic abilities will force them to intervene in dire events, although one twin can see only the future and one can see only the past. I can't really pinpoint why. It's really a great place for Papyrus to be. And maybe that distracted me from the story a little, but I also think that it provided me with a motive to keep reading.
