After the break-up of the Soviet Union, scholars stopped looking at capitalist and Marxist ideological differences to explain political and social tensions and turned their focus to religious, ethnic, and cultural differences. According to Casanovap.

One important step is to look beyond religious doctrine to the way in which religion is securitized. While the securitization approach helps explain problematic foreign and domestic policy implications resulting from the essentialization of religion, scholars must go further in contextualizing the tensions among religious actors and within religious traditions. On matters of international peace and security in particular, multilateralism has been manhandled for years.

Many recent conflicts have involved valuable geopolitical real estate, especially in the United States and EU must press Kiev harder for reforms while using strong diplomacy with Moscow, including maintaining sanctions. While Chinese President Xi Jinping fears the prospect of war on the peninsula bringing chaos, a possibly U.
