This rule works most of the time, but be careful, "pauvre" can mean "financially poor" even when used before the nouns. Views Read Edit Add topic View history. Also remember that the past participle does not agree with the direct object if it goes after the verb. In addition, their past participles end in -ert. If the subject is a noun instead of a pronoun, invert the verb and the pronoun that represents the subject. Replace the -ons ending of a verb conjugated in the first person plural in the present indicative with -ant.

Venir will serve as an example; for tenir, simply change the v to o. Similarly direct objects, such as "la balle", can be replaced by pronouns. Views Read Edit View history.
